

Scuba training

Freitag, 30 März 2007

I'm a PADI (Professional Association of Diving Instructors) Master Scuba Diver Trainer.

The quality of scuba training depends primarily - beside the standards defined by the training organizations - on knowledge, motivation, projecting ability, didactical abilities, experience, circumspection and commitment of the diving instructor.

Because of scuba diving has grown trendy also the number of black sheep and appointed professional scuba trainers has risen.

For scuba beginners it's often very difficult to find a respectable scuba trainer.

If you compare prices, you should pay attention to transparent quotations. Often costs of borrowing equipment, training materials or certifying must be added to the course price mentioned.

If you are looking for high-quality training at fair prices, you have found here the correct address. Promised is promised!
